The World Fund for Development and Planning achieves its professional goals by applying a set of advanced disciplines across administrative, training, promotional and media related fields. This enables the organization, its branches and subsidiaries to refine their performance and consider investment options in all available openings; the updated list of which can be obtained periodically from accredited centers for specialized research and study.

This can be executed in three ways, namely;

1. By focusing on remote development and improvement of labor performance laws and regulations for the benefit of individuals, institutions and companies. This can be facilitated online, without having to commute and incur unnecessary expenses.
2. By designing and hosting collective activities that satisfy the majority of the beneficiaries' knowledge, media, cultural, scientific and educational needs.
3. By simplifying sciences and facilitating knowledge transfer from experienced industry experts to beneficiaries such as students, scholars and other target audience of researchers such as enthusiasts who are keen to add value to their own experience and develop competitive abilities for their individual projects.

The World Fund for Development and Planning Center for Research and Studies has implemented a general framework for developing the capabilities and competitive components of the organization, its leaders, members, staff and others who are a part of it.

This framework includes active channels for continuous development in;

1-Consultancy

2-Research and Study

3-Training and Rehabilitation

4-Enterprise Development

5-Effective Marketing

6-Integrated Interactive Media
